

Joe Shea Memorial Roundabout honors longtime Duxbury volunteer

Richard MacDonald, center, leads the dedication of the Joe Shea Memorial Roundabout in fulfillment of a promise to Shea's family as town manager.

Joe Shea's children, Susan, Andrew and David, are pleased with the naming of the Joe Shea Memorial Roundabout.

The community gathers for the dedication Tuesday of the Joe Shea Memorial Roundabout.

Photos by Wicked Local photo/Kathryn Gallerani

The Duxbury Reporter
DUXBURY —

May 25, 2013

The hours of research Joe Shea put into every project he dedicated himself to really add up. Whether it was the roundabout at Lincoln Street or the World War I Memorial, he was dedicated to doing what was necessary to make these projects come to fruition. With the dedication Tuesday morning of the Joe Shea Memorial Roundabout, it's official what his family has been saying for years. More than two years after his death, Shea's legacy has been set in metal with the sign at Duxbury's roundabout that bears his name.

Read more: <http://www.wickedlocal.com/duxbury/news/x514111234/VIDEO-Joe-Shea-Memorial-Roundabout-honors-longtime-Duxbury-volunteer#ixzz2UV2u4Vir>